

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention includes an electronic commerce system for transfer of product purchase selection having a first website adapted to communicate product information to consumers and adapted to receive at least one product purchase selection from a consumer, a shopping cart associated with the consumer and adapted to maintain the product purchase selection, and a cart transfer for transferring the product purchase selection from the shopping cart to a second shopping cart associated with the second website.